

Foreword

This is the story of how we have accumulated keys to add to our chain of success. Although it has taken us years to find these keys, we realize the search was not in vain, for they have opened doors we never want to close.

Our search for the keys to success has not ended here, however. We are looking toward the future in the anticipation that we shall continue to be as fortunate as we have been in the past in discovering these keys.

May our keys unlock many doors for the coming seniors, and assist them as they have us, in achieving their goals.

PENN-BERNVILLE HIGH SCHOOL Bernville, Pennsylvania VOL. XII

Dedication

MR. WILLIAM H. KAISER

The man who has helped us acquire our keys to success is Mr. William Kaiser. During his years at Penn-Bernville he has done a great deal toward the advancement of mathematics. Because of his able leadership and his willingness to extend a helping hand, Mr. Kaiser has won the respect and admiration of all the students in our school. It is, therefore, with deepest respect that we dedicate the 1960 PENNANT to Mr. William Kaiser, a credit to the teaching profession.

Onbehalf of the faculty and student body may we extend our succere thanks to the class of 1960 and its advisors for the publication of this current edition of the PENNANT. We feel sure that this book will continue to carry forth the fine tradition established by the yearbooks of the past

The theme of this year's book. "The Kevs to Success," has real significance to all of us who are in school. If we can, through work in school, find the formula for success i our later lives will be much more fruitful worthwhile. We believe that our school life is a training ground for our later adulant truly is the storehouse for "The Kevs to Success."

Best wishes to the class of 1960

Underclasses in Action

Curricula

Agriculture

Irwin Zerbe, Arthur Kissling, and Bruce Good look at some of the latest editions of farm magazines. Members of the agriculture classes learn the latest and most economical methods of farming, as well as studying about new developments in farm machinery.

Algebra

Tenth grade students work on Algebra, the branch of mathematics concerned with the relations and properties of numbers by means of letters, signs of operation, and other symbols. Study in this course includes solution of equations, polynomials, and continued fractions.

Dawn Sweigart, Marlene Rentschler, and Stewart Brodman work on still life drawings, one of the many projects undertaken by the art classes. The attractive bulletin board displays in the hall this year were products of the art classes.

Bookkeeping

Carol Hartman explains a bookkeeping problem, which has stumped the other students. Knowledge of bookkeeping is invaluable not only for future men and women of business, but also for each person who wishes to be successful in budgeting his money. Realizing this, students find the classes interesting and worthwhile.

Mr. Hartman looks on as Nancy Bixler and Barry Kraatz perform an experiment on lime water filtration. Becoming familiar with the elements and how they react when combined chemically, students discover many secrets of the universe and gain an understanding of modern science.

Driver Training

Mr. Matthew gives his approving smile as Barry Kraatz names the parts of the engine. James Kintzer listens intently, for his turn is next. These boys, as well as the other juniors in driver training classes, get first-hand experience in driving and car care and learn the basic rules for safety on the highway.

English

The tenth grade students prepare the themes Mrs. Matthew has assigned them. English classes spend a great deal of time writing creatively, for this activity stimulates the imagination and gives students an opportunity to apply what they have learned about effective writing. Reading, speaking, and listening activities are also included in the English program.

German

James Bertram reads "Die Kinder," while the rest of the classfollow in their books. Most students find German interesting, since many of their ancestors came from Germany. German classes read many interesting shortstories as well as listening to German records and reading the novel "Immensee."

History

Paul Himmelberger, Edwin Meredith, Joan Troutman, and Mary Long make use of reference books in their search for materials to supplement their textbook information about the Ancients. From the facts they gather, students prepare projects which are used as visual aids.

Homemaking

Carol Hartman and Kathryn Burkhart demonstrate their skill in sewing, which, they have found, has helped to enlarge their wardrobes. Good grooming, cooking, child care, and home management are just some of the subjects besides sewing taught in homemaking classes.

Latin

Bonnie Luckenbill, Clayton Wagner and Tanya Pyle show David Evans and Evelyn Balthaser how to decline nouns. These students find Latin basic to a colorful vocabulary in English and important in the understanding of world history. At Christmas time the class enjoyed the singing of "Adeste Fideles."

Music

Dale Henne and Richard Wilhelm play a French horn selection with Mr. Berger. Students have regular lessons on band instruments so they may become more proficient musicians. Junior high school classes receive instruction in vocal music, and study the mechanics of, and appreciation for fine music.

Physical Education

The seventh grade physical education class learns the fundamental rules of hockey. While some practice bullying, others practice passing, driving and dribbling. The girls find a hockey scrimmage very tiring, but lots of fun. Many seasonal sports are engaged in during the school term.

Social Studies

Sandra Benzel shows Kenneth Tobias, Byron Bixler, Lillian Bare and Sandra Messner important countries of Africa. The students of the ninth grade class have found studying the geography and history of foreign lands fascinating.

Shop

Bruce Good accompanied by Mr. Sleppy constructs stands on which students of the lower grades will do mechanical drawing. Manual arts classes are prepared for future construction work by becoming adept in the use of the many electrical and hand tools needed for this type work.

Science

Arthur Wolf, Reart Soil, Dara Koch, and Joseph Lines with the statil electron mechanic, and the devices used for the later to the inscience classes. Under the linestion of Mr. Hartman the word to classificate standard the with the linest term for further shall.

Richard Speicher and Barbara Ernst solve a right triangle, one of the many problems approached in trigonometry classes. Creating a definite challenge to all senior academic students, this advanced form of mathematics acquaints students with the use of the slide rule and surveying equipment

Typing

These juniors are looking at the typing keyboard, trying to memorize the keys on the typewriter. After memorizing the keys, students strive for accuracy. Under Mrs. Mooney's careful guidance, typing students learn proficiency on both standard and electric typewriters.

Council

To start the school term off on a friendly basis, Student Council sponsored a "Get-Acquainted Dance" for grades 7-12. This was only one of the many outstanding activities which were enjoyed by all throughout the year.

One of the Council's projects was sponsoring fine assemblies including Dr. No-Young Park, world lecturer, and a glass blower.

An innovation of Student Council's this year was the presentation of an award to the best decorated homeroom at Christmas time.

Throughout the year this key organization has worked diligently to improve our school.

Mark R. I and the girls of the Red Cross have done magnificent work this year. This wonderful organization has sponsored the filling of Christmas boxes and sending them to needy countries. They also made bibs out of Turkish towels and bedroom slippers out of wash cloths

The Safety Patrol, one of the most important groups at Penn-Bernville, serves to assist small children across the crosswalks and maintain good conduct on the school buses. Under the direction of Mr. Kaiser, these boys and girls study the principles of safety and apply it in their roles as leaders.

Edmund Yost, Irwin Zerbe, and Bruce Good discuss the effective use of the tractor, one of the implements they use in project work. Boys in the F. A. combine actual experience with textbook study, approaching farming from a modern, scientific standpoint. Maintenance and repair of farm equipment is an important part of their education, also, as future farm-
